A 2-hour Session with Fred Ventura

March 22nd, 2024 1PM-3PM

This workshop series introduces students to the basics of drawing and watercolor painting techniques, mixing colors and color application specific to botanical illustration. This class will emphasize how careful observation of a botanical subject can lead to improved drawings and more accurate paintings.

Live in the art studio, students will experience step-by-step demonstrations that allow for individual guidance and real-time interactions between the teacher and participants. The goal will be to complete a botanical illustration in the classical style.

The class will use basic watercolor materials. This class is appropriate for those with no prior experience and also anyone who wishes to improve their skills.
